ENVIRONMENTAL SUSTAINABILITY

Neos says no to plastic on board its aircraft. In advance of EU legislation, which bans single-use plastic items from 2021, Neos has introduced new sustainable, compostable and recyclable catering service materials on board. All over the world there is an increasingly strong trend towards the abandonment of plastic in favor of new environmentally friendly solutions necessary for the protection of the planet. On the entire fleet of the Boeing 737, 737-8 and 787 Dreamliners, glasses, cutlery, tablecloths, napkins and sugar sachets have been replaced with alternative materials by introducing biodegradable materials, wooden cutlery and packaging of paper, cardboard and biodegradable plastics.

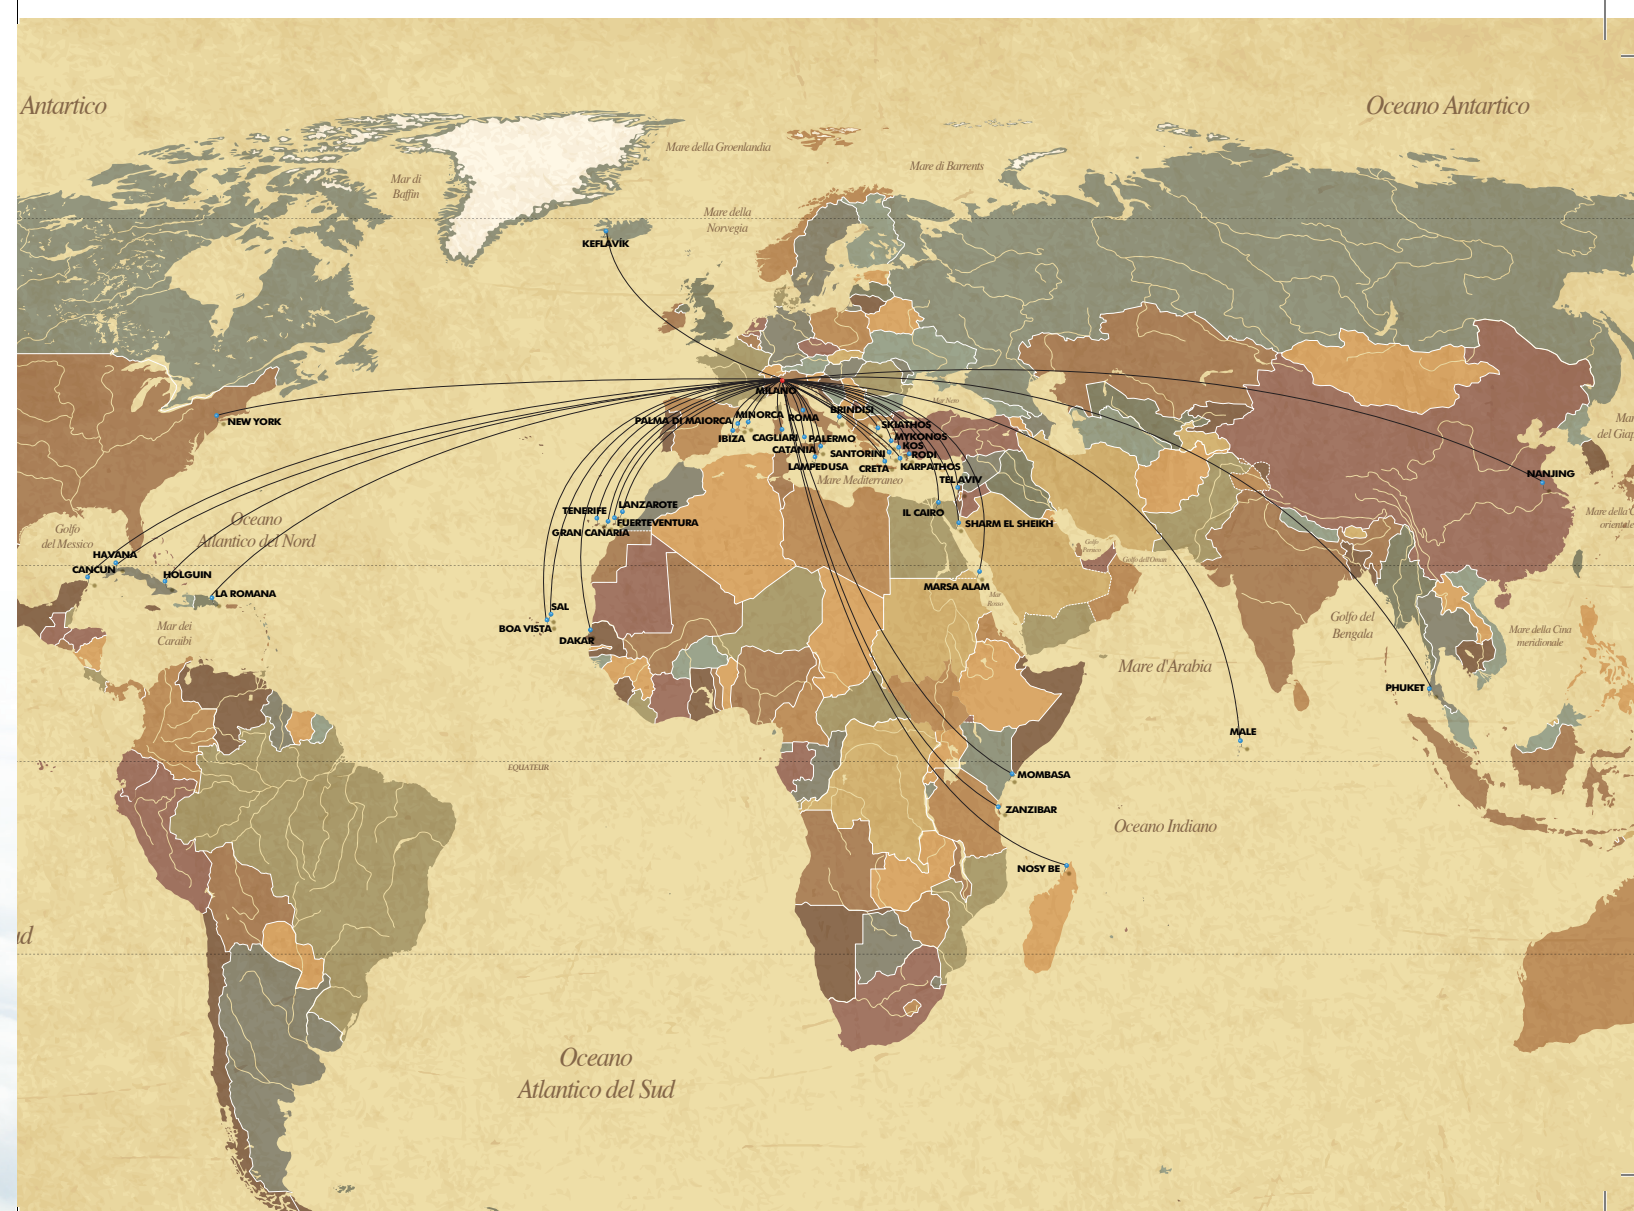

In this project for the environment, Neos says “no to plastic” and reduces from its flights millions of glasses, millions of plastic cutlery and millions of cups for on-board service. In fact, numerous airlines are now adopting measures aimed at reducing their impact on the environment with ambitious and certainly admirable goals and Neos, to become greener, responds promptly in terms of sustainability and investment.
